CELEBRATION OF UDYAMITA DIWAS

Date: 21st August, 2024

Objectives:

- To engage students in exploring how entrepreneurship can positively impact individuals, communities, and the broader economy.
- To educate students on how entrepreneurship can serve as a powerful tool for creating job opportunities.
- To inspire women to pursue leadership positions by showcasing the achievements of successful female entrepreneurs.

Description: On August 21, 2024, The Department of Commerce & Management hosted a 90-minute event to celebrate Udyamita Diwas for BBA and BCA students. The program featured inspirational videos that highlighted real-life entrepreneurs who took risks to achieve their current success. One notable video was a TED Talk by Bill Roche titled "The Power of an Entrepreneurial Mindset," which introduced students to key entrepreneurial skills such as creativity, critical thinking, problem-solving, flexibility, and communication. The video also showcased young students aged 9 to 12 participating in the Young Entrepreneur Show, where they launched businesses, engaged with customers, and earned real money.

Another featured video focused on Howard Schultz, the owner of Starbucks, detailing the challenges he faced and how he overcame them to achieve success. This video highlighted the value of trusting one's own instincts and persevering despite setbacks, quoting Robert Heinlein: "Always listen to the experts, because they are very good at telling you what you cannot do and why you cannot do it, and then you must go and do it anyway." This message encouraged students to use obstacles as motivation to achieve their goals.

Following the session, students were excited to realize that fulfilling, meaningful, and self-reliant careers are achievable not just in the future but also today. The event concluded with an interactive Q&A session where students asked questions and engaged with teachers. The program, attended by over 60 students, was well-received, with participants providing very positive feedback on the learning and awareness experience.

Outcomes:

- Students gained a deeper insight into the entrepreneurial ecosystem and its components.
- The success stories presented will motivate aspiring entrepreneurs to take bold steps and launch their own ventures.
- Entrepreneurs will develop a better understanding of available government schemes and learn how to access funding and mentorship resources.

CELEBRATION OF NATIONAL SPACE DAY

Date: 23rd August, 2024

The Physics Department of St. Bede's College Shimla marked National Space Day with a series of activities aimed at commemorating India's strides in space technology and exploration. These initiatives served as a poignant reminder of the invaluable contributions made by Indian scientists and researchers in the field of space science.

Objectives:

1. To highlight and commemorate the significant contributions of Indian scientists and researchers in the field of space exploration and technology, particularly through India's space missions and advancements.
2. To educate students and participants about the importance of space science, its applications, and its role in shaping technological progress and innovation in India and globally.
3. To inspire students to take an active interest in space sciences and related fields, fostering curiosity and encouraging future careers in space research and technology.
4. To honour the pioneering efforts of Indian scientists and researchers who have played a key role in India's space programs, such as the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) and its missions.

Activity I

On August 22, 2024, the department organized an engaging online talk titled "An Introduction to the Wonders of Astronomy," featuring Mr. Shranayya, Assistant Teacher at GHPs Karnataka, as the guest speaker. Mr. Shranayya delved into the pivotal role of astronomy in ancient societies, highlighting its functions as a navigational aid, its influence on agricultural practices through calendar systems, and its impact on religious and cultural beliefs. He also discussed how astronomy continues to advance scientific knowledge and enrich the symbolic and architectural heritage of civilizations. During the session, Mr. Shranayya introduced Stellarium, a free open-source planetarium software designed for computers. Stellarium provides a realistic 3D portrayal of the sky, faithfully replicating celestial views observable with the naked eye, binoculars, or a telescope.

This celebration not only honoured past achievements but also emphasized the enduring significance of astronomy in shaping human society and culture. By fostering awareness and appreciation of space science, the Physics department aims to inspire students and nurture their interest in exploring the cosmos and pursuing careers in related fields.

VISIT TO HIMALAYAN FOREST RESEARCH INSTITUTE PANTHAGHATI SHIMLA

DATE: 3rd September 2024

Objective: The visit was organized to provide students with practical exposure to real-world research activities. The visit was designed to deepen students' understanding of the challenges and solutions in forest conservation, management, and biodiversity, equipping them with both knowledge and practical skills essential for their academic and professional growth.

Description: On September 3, 2024 the students of B.Sc. - III, Department of Zoology, St. Bede's College visited Himalayan Forest Research Institute, Panthaghati Shimla. The day began with a detailed presentation delivered by Dr. Akhil, a research associate at the institute. He started by introducing the students to the history and development of the Himalayan Forest Research Institute. He explained the institute's role in contributing to forestry research, its inception, and its mission to conserve and manage forest resources, especially in the ecologically sensitive Himalayan region. He provided a comprehensive overview of the various research initiatives undertaken by the institute. These included studies related to forest biodiversity, ecosystem conservation, climate change impacts, and sustainable forest management and forest protection. Dr. Sandeep Sharma, Director of HFRI, provided students with guidance on available internships and project opportunities at the institute, including summer and winter projects. These opportunities aim to help students gain practical experience and enhance their skills in forest research and related fields.

Notice

Presentation delivered by Dr. Akhil, in the conference hall HFRI

Following the presentation, the students were given a guided tour of the institute's laboratories and research facilities. The students explored the institute's technology and demonstration centre; the students were informed about the ecological and economic importance of the Himalayan Pencil Cedar. Students learned about the various techniques used to break seed dormancy, such as stratification and other seed treatment processes, which significantly improve the germination rates. The students learned about the numerous medicinal plants that have been used for centuries in traditional healing practices. Some of these plants are renowned for their therapeutic properties and play a key role in local herbal medicine. In addition to medicinal plants, the students also explored the role of traditional cereals in the region's agricultural and dietary practices. These methods have opened new possibilities for conserving and expanding the population of this ecologically significant tree species in the Himalayan region.

Technology and Demonstration centre

Students visited the herbarium lab, which houses an extensive collection of plant specimens. In this lab, the students observed how herbarium specimens are meticulously prepared and mounted on special sheets, used to preserve plant samples for long-term study. The herbarium holds approximately 7,400 plant specimens, representing around 1,500 species from 135 plant families native to the Western Himalayas.

Herbarium Lab

Students also had the opportunity to explore both the Genetics and Tree Improvement Division and the Silviculture and Forest Department Laboratory, where they gained hands-on exposure to advanced molecular biology techniques used in forestry research. In the Genetics and Tree Improvement Division, students were introduced to the processes aimed at enhancing the genetic quality and productivity of tree species through scientific innovation.

In the Forest Protection Lab, students were introduced to cutting-edge tools and techniques used in forest conservation and protection research. The lab focuses on both pathological and entomological studies that are essential for maintaining healthy forest ecosystems. The students observed the collection of insect boxes, where various species of butterflies, moths, and other insects are preserved and stored. These insect specimens are crucial for entomological studies, as insects play a significant role in forest ecosystems, either as pollinators or as pests that can damage trees. As part of their hands-on experience in the lab, the students participated in the stretching of butterflies, a technique used to prepare and display butterfly specimens for study. This process involves carefully positioning the wings of the insects to preserve them for entomological examination. The students also had the opportunity to conduct a detailed dissection of a moth. During the dissection, they focused on the male moth's reproductive system. They removed and observed the genitalia of the male moth, studying its reproductive organs under a microscope.

Display of insect boxes

Outcome: The visit to the Himalayan Forest Research Institute was highly educational and impactful, providing them with valuable insights, practical skills, and enhanced knowledge. This fostered a greater appreciation for the role of scientific research in protecting forests and ecosystems, while equipping students with hands-on experience and knowledge that will benefit their future studies and careers.

HANDS ON TRAINING IN BEEKEEPING AT Y. S. PARMAR UNIVERSITY OF HORTICULTURE AND FORESTRY NAUNI

Date: 23rd October, 2024

Objective: The beekeeping training aimed to equip students with foundational skills in hive management, species identification and understanding bee life cycles and brood development. It emphasized disease identification and management, sustainable and ethical practices, and highlighted bees' ecological roles in pollination and biodiversity.

Description: On October 23, 2024 the SEC students of B.Sc. III and B.Sc. II Department of Zoology, St. Bede's College visited Y. S. Parmar University of Horticulture and Forestry Nauni, Solan for hands on training in beekeeping. The training introduced students to the fundamentals of beekeeping, focusing on two bee species: Apis mellifera and Apis cerana. This session provided a unique blend of theoretical knowledge and practical skills, bridging classroom learning with real-world applications.

The training began with an introduction to the fundamentals of beekeeping, covering the life cycles and social structures of honeybees. Students learned how to identify different brood stages and recognize the characteristics of worker bees, drones, and the queen. This knowledge was reinforced by hands-on activities, where students practiced critical hive management skills. They learned to handle and inspect frames within the hive, identify storage cells containing honey, pollen, and brood, and recognize different life stages within a colony. This exposure not only equipped them with practical skills but also instilled confidence in working with bees.

A significant part of the training emphasized the importance of recognizing and managing common bee diseases and pests that can impact hive health. Students were introduced to methods of disease prevention and the proper handling of affected hives to reduce risks to bee populations. This aspect of the training highlighted the complexities of maintaining hive health and the importance of vigilance in sustainable beekeeping practices.

Additionally, students gained insights into the crucial role bees play in pollination and maintaining biodiversity. Through detailed discussions, they learned about the ecological and agricultural significance of bees, understanding how their pollination activities support both natural ecosystems and agricultural productivity. The training underscored the ethical and sustainable practices essential in beekeeping, such as using eco-friendly methods to care for hives and promoting bee conservation.

Outcome: The training provided students with hands-on skills in hive management, understanding bee behaviour, and recognizing diseases. They learned about honey, pollen, and wax production, emphasizing ethical harvesting and bee welfare. The program highlighted bees' crucial role in pollination and biodiversity, linking it to ecosystem health. Students left with a foundation in sustainable beekeeping and potential career pathways in apiculture and conservation.
